

The background of the entire page is a photograph of the Meri College building entrance. It features a large, arched doorway with a wooden frame and glass panels, set within a white facade. The entrance is reached by a set of wide, light-colored stone steps. On either side of the steps, there are several potted plants, including green leafy ones and some with small white flowers. The building has a modern architectural style with clean lines and a mix of white and dark grey tones. The sky is not visible, suggesting an overcast or shaded day. The entire image is framed by a thick, multi-colored border that transitions from blue on the left to purple at the top and bottom, and orange on the right.

UNLOCK NATION- Not the right time to unlock Delhi!!

India's public landscape has transformed dramatically over the last couple of months, with the most prolonged lockdown that the present generation can remember. After four consecutive phases of lockdowns, the Centre announced 'Unlock 1.0' from June 1, wherein services resumed in a phased manner in several areas. Over the past month, since the central government ushered in the phase of reopening of the economy and restoration of public life and normalcy through what was called "Unlock" (as opposed to 'lockdown'), multiple states have resorted to sealing their borders to arrest the spike in novel coronavirus infections. Some states such as Tamil Nadu and Karnataka have even imposed lockdowns. India's public landscape has transformed dramatically over the last couple of months, with the most prolonged lockdown that the present generation can remember. The total number of coronavirus positive cases in the national capital has crossed the 28,000-mark and is constantly on the rise. There has also been outrage among the Delhiites, who are facing problems with hospital authorities. As CBSE, ICSE, ISC and several other exams scheduled to be held in July have been either cancelled or postponed, enough hints have been dropped that the situation is not yet right for educational institutions to resume activities. State governments are also not in favour of resuming classes. More trains and domestic flights will be running in July. According to reports, international flights may resume during the end of July. Also, migrants are returning to the national capital to resume their work. Let's hope for the best and stay inside.
